This is to certify the Dr. Luca Zaggia from the Institute of Marine Sciences, National Research Council of Italy, visited the State Key Laboratory of Estuarine and Coastal Research (SKLEC), East China Normal University (ECNU) from November 17 to December 11, 2015. During the visit, he made a formal presentation on "How Venice has reacted to sea-level rise: a centuries old fight against nature and man-related transformation". We also had several discussions about erosion and sedimentation issues in Venice and Shanghai coasts, including professors, young scientists, students and technicians.

As a part of his visit, he visited the research facilities at SKLEC, the deep water navigation channel of the Yangtze estuary, and the Shanghai Administration Centre for Ocean Affairs. We believe his visit is fruitful and will serve as a start for the future collaboration between the State Key Laboratory of Estuarine and Coastal Research and the Institute of Marine Sciences because the two organizations share many research interests in common.
