

David Dobrinic graduated in Geology and Geography on the Faculty of Science of the University of Zagreb. He is working at the Safety and Environment Protection Sector of the Croatian Hydrocarbon Agency, on the position of Head of Environment Protection Department. David's is working mainly on safety of offshore oil and gas industry in Croatia, acting as a Secretary of the national Competent Authority for offshore safety. He also covers geothermal energy activities and works on various environment protection issues related to oil and gas activities. Before joining CHA, he worked in the Croatian Environment Protection Agency on climate change issues, focusing mainly on European greenhouse gas emission trading system (EU ETS).