Italy: The Beauty of Knowledge

Italy: The Beauty of Knowledge – An Exhibition on the beauty and diversity of the Italian Research System, at the Italian Embassy

Italy: The Beauty of Knowledge is an exhibition promoted and financed by the Italian Ministry of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation (MAECI) Band carried out by the Italian National Research Council (CNR) with the contribution of the four main Italian science museums: Fondazione Idis-Città della Scienza (Naples); Museo Galileo (Florence); Museo delle Scienza (Trento); Museo Nazionale della Scienza e della Tecnologia "Leonardo da Vinci" (Milan).

Italy is renowned for its history and tradition, but it has also been an active laboratory of innovation, where fascinating challenges are faced and where it is possible to imagine and plan for a better future. Italy: The Beauty of Knowledge, is an immersive experience that aims to communicate the dynamic and beautiful nature of the quest for knowledge and research in Italy. It is an interactive space combining virtual and physical components to express this message. The exhibition aims at conveying the non-traditional, creative and dynamic collisions that make up the Italian research system, combining knowledge with the artistic tradition of Italy as well as the renown Italian lifestyle and art of well-being. It explores "The Beauty of Knowledge" through the following main themes:

- Health
- Environment
- Space
- Food and Nutrition
- Cultural Heritage

The main aim of the exhibition is to highlight, through its different sections, the “Renaissance Spirit” that is a vital and significant component of the past, but also as a driving engine for current research and innovation, and a cultural model to be disseminated all over the world. This is where the title, Italy: The Beauty of Knowledge, strikes in as a way of reflecting the exhibition’s attempt to engage the public in a journey through time, exploring research and innovation and its beauty, in the past, through the present and to the future.

Italy: The Beauty of Knowledge offers its visitors a multi-layered story including a film that links the objects presented with the different elements of the exhibition’s themes. These different links create some sort of a multi-sensory dialogue between visitors and the exhibition elements.

The exhibition was first inaugurated in Rome at the Farnesina in April 2018, and then it witnessed its first international inauguration at the Bibliotheca Alexandrina in Alexandria, Egypt in July 2018. This month it will be hosted by the Embassy of Italy in New Delhi, India from the 31st of October until the 6th of November 2018. Later the exhibition will travel to Singapore in December 2018.
