'We are entering a new world where quantum approach will lead', says Armenian president

armenpress.am 2 days ago

President of Armenia Armen Sarkissian has held a meeting on January 26 with Prof. Massimo Inguscio, the President of the National Research Council of Italy.

Sarkissian and Inguscio had met most recently in November 2018 during the Armenian president's visit to Rome. During the meeting the Armenian president had invited the Italian professor to visit Armenia to discuss specific directions for cooperation.

"It's always nice to meet a friend", Sarkissian told Inguscio during today's meeting. "I believe that his visit, possible cooperation with our country are important not only for science, but also the society, social behavior, even for politics. We are entering a new world, and this new world is going to be governed exclusively with new ideas, new approaches, where quantum approach will be among the leading ones".

Prof. Massimo Inguscio, thanking for the invitation, said: "In Italy, Armenia is perceived as a strategic country of the highest level. Our president finds science to be a powerful and strong tool aimed for the future. In this context our November decisi...
